For 16 consecutive years, Labour Day celebrations had been held at the Dataran Merdeka. This year, the police decided no more . Three ghoulish letters G-S-T must have freaked them out. But as always, there's a valid reason from the authorities.

From The Star Online :

“We cannot allow them to gather here because they had no permit. It was a wrongful gathering,” he (Dang Wangi OCPD Asst Comm Zulkarnain Abdul Rahman) said.

Yeah right.

For 16 consecutive years, hundreds would show up in solidarity over some form of labour oppression, say their piece, and go home. Peace out. They would cross the same streets, wear coordinated T-shirts, carry banners, and it would be fine. This year, it's no longer fine. There's something to be said about this whole 'Performance Now' thingie.

Wayne Lee, this year it's not so, and the GST, it leave to some cayegrow wrote, and go on, it minimum wage and more humane maternity

And she and her friends will tell you this: BANTAH GST .

Loud and clear.

Tell it to the 500 talking about how GST Saturday that it's okay to gather and throw slippers at

And the GST respond with this

Talk to GST: the bus about to be tabled in Malaysian wheating in Parliament and that they can't do just it to Sheffield is about to be tabled in Malaysian wheating in Parliament and that they can't do

GUSAL
AKTA
GAJI
MINIMA

Sat to Lat Wed Selangor Chinese Assembly Hall. The pastor in solidarity at Dataran Merdeka

They came in all shapes and sizes.
Everyone sweated buckets.

And when it came time to replenish fluids and calories, there was goodwill and sharing.

The pearest main conditioned mall was 15 minutes away in an air-conditioned SUV; heaven to

Written by straits-mongrel

Saturday, 01 May 2010 22:10 - Last Updated Sunday, 02 May 2010 01:04

[illegible] May Day.