

Quaint in Kuala Pilah

Written by straits-mongrel

Monday, 24 August 2009 12:19 - Last Updated Monday, 14 September 2009 17:29

Quaint in Kuala Pilah

Written by straits-mongrel

Monday, 24 August 2009 12:19 - Last Updated Monday, 14 September 2009 17:29

A timber frame house nestled along one of the trunk roads leading into Kuala Pilah, Negri Sembilan. It speaks of joyous explorations with machine and hand, a Malaysian Art Nouveau in its own right. The owner of the place clearly went about his own path in this forested valley of the Minangkabau.

More on the early 20th century European Art Nouveau movement here . Short history of Kuala Pilah here .