Really, it wasn't quite the perfect recipe for an outdoor event. It rained like nobody's business, as they say in local lingo; traffic was crawling in and around KL; and to top it off, it was held on a work day in the midst of Bulan Ramadhan.

But it was important enough. So thought the 250 or so citizens, who crammed themselves tightly within the canopy confines.

Saya Anak Bangsa Malaysia was officially launched on Sept 16, 2009, coinciding with Hari Malaysia when Sabah, Sarawak and now-independent Singapore joined Malaya to form a new nation.

The Anak Bangsa Malaysia Charter was announced. You can read it here or here . The document shall serve as the compass for this initiative. Programmes to actualise this message were outlined and a brief QnA session held.

And just as the call of the Maghrib prayers filled the Damansara air, we broke fast. Chapatis were willingly halved between friends. And even more new friendships forged.
